

Lauren Edwards, 2013

What Career are you in, and what sort of things does this entail?

Since leaving Malbank school and my two years at sixth form, I went on to completing two business administration apprenticeships, after being advised by a tutor that university was the only option for me. I completed the apprenticeship whilst working within HR at South & West Cheshire College.

I have since worked at Leighton Hospital for the last 4.5 years in General Surgery as a secretary to the consultants and clinical lead.

What inspired you to go into your chosen career?

I applied for the job as i was eager to get into the NHS.

What advice would you give to anyone interested in working in your career area?

Apprenticeships are a fantastic way to figure out what you want to do, whilst gaining experience, which will be extremely valuable in the years to come.

What do you know now, that you wish you'd known when you were leaving Malbank?

Not to put too much pressure on picking a career. I never knew what i wanted to do, and still do not at 28.

However, I have fallen in to a job I enjoy, and plan to work my way up whilst gaining as much experience as possible.
